Introduction

This town was first granted probably as No. 3 in the line of towns from the Merimack to the Connecticut River by Massachusetts, Jan. 16, 1735-6. Granted by New Hampshire as Burnett to Col. Sampson Stoddard and others, Dec. 28, 1752, and named for Gov. William Burnett. Regranted as New Burnett, Nov. 17, 1761, to Stoddard and others. Incorporated as Acworth, Sept. 19, 1766, and named in honor of Lord Acworth, and the charter was renewed May 30, 1772. (New Hampshire State Papers, Vol. XXIV; p. 3.)

The town was first settled in 1767 by three young men from Connecticut, William Keyes, Joseph Chatterton and Samuel Smith, they all being from Ashford or vicinity, the first named being accompanied by his wife and an infant a few months old. They were followed by comparatively few from Connecticut, but their posterity were numerous. The settlers in the following years came largely from Londonderry, New Boston and Weare, and surrounding towns, while several came from Massachusetts. As the town grew, emigration commenced,—to Vermont, New York state and Ohio, so that today the descendants of this "Hill Town" of New Hampshire have representatives in all the West and indirectly to the Pacific Ocean.

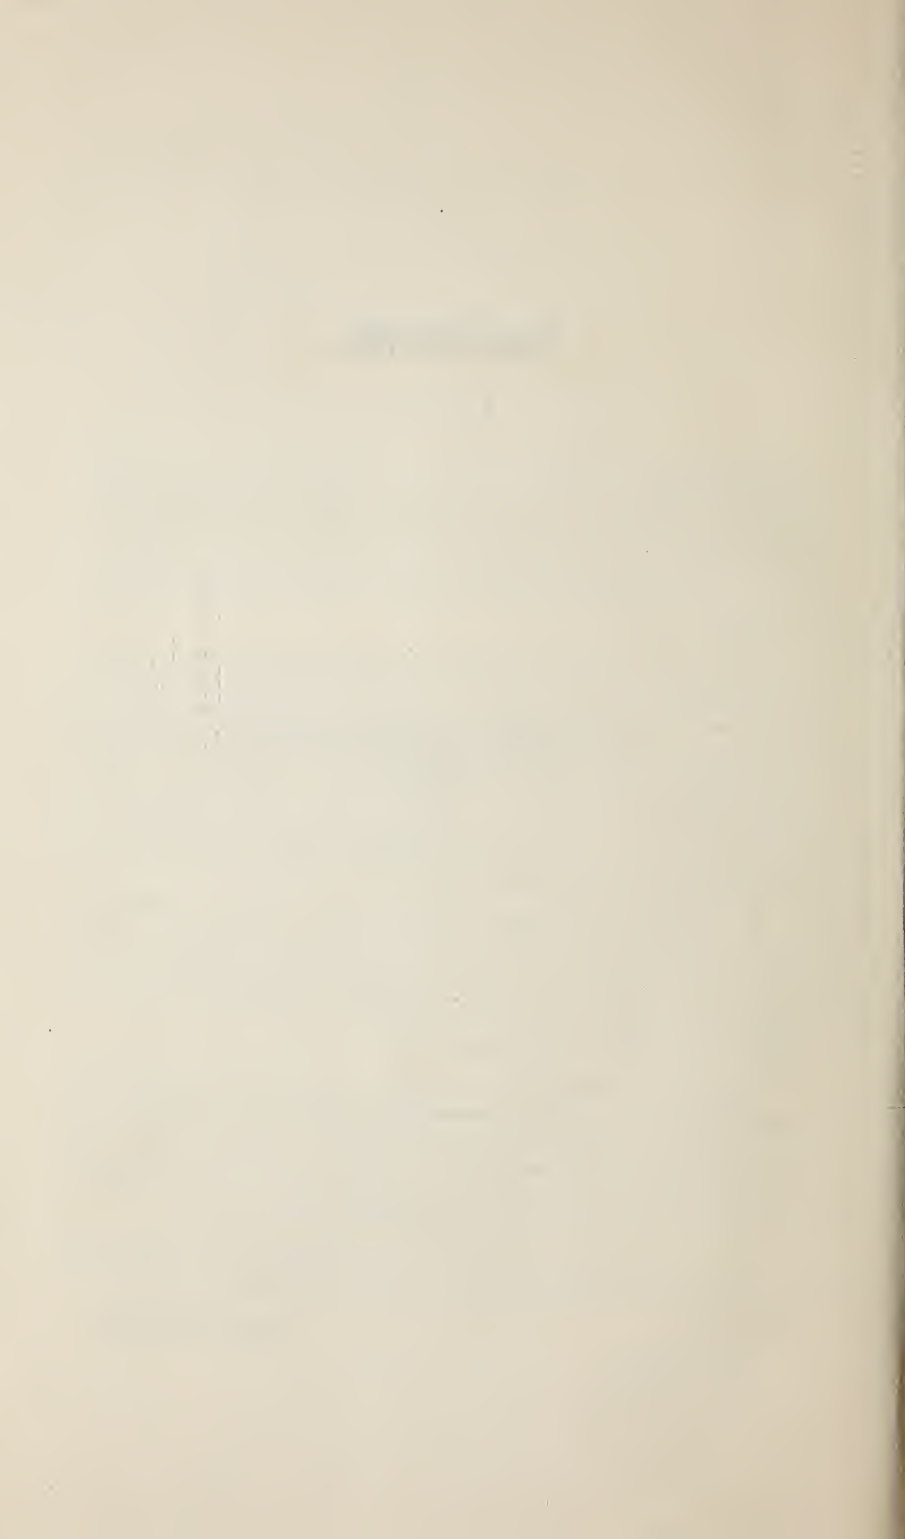

The first mention of a cemetery or burying ground is that of the Common, (although doubtless many were buried on private grounds.) In 1776 a burying ground was selected, and Lieut. James Rogers, one of the selectmen for that year, was the first person buried there. To this yard an addition was made in 1834. From this "old yard," so called, the following inscriptions are made. The part taken in the War of the Revolution is remarkable.

According to the census of 1775, (see p. 234, Vol. I, New Hampshire Historical Collections,) there were no male citizens under 16 years of age. "Merrill's History of Acworth" (p. 164,) states that in 1777 its quota was five, and that five years before (1772) she had only twenty-five voters. The patriotism of these must have been large, to have sent the number of which the appendix to this, relating to the Revolutionary War, shows to have been participants in that epoch of history.

This sturdy "Americanism" this town later contributed to all the wars of this country, and to the descendants of all of Acworth descent I most cheerfully dedicate this brochure.
